"Sunrise," "Rustic Dance," "Sunset,"
"Thanksgiving" (Demarest).

A wave of enthusiasm has swept over the congregation of the Ninth Street Christian Church as a result of the revival services now being conducted there by Evangelists H. E. Wilhite and F. H. Shaul. Already 110 have announced their intention of joining the church. The meetings will continue one week longer, and the prospects are said to be that in that time the number of converts will be doubled.

Tomorrow morning at 9:30 o'clock the sermon will be "The Interpretation of the Commission." The evangelists will conduct a meeting for men only. The subject of the sermon will be "The Great Judgment." At 7:45 p. m. the subject will be "Mother, Home, and Heaven." Every one is asked to wear Heaven." Every one is asked to a flower in honor of mother.

"THE JOY OF LIVING

Temple Talks, Alpha Series

The Valley of the Nile is a fruitful valley, not because the Nile flows through it, but because that river overflows into it. And so is the value of your life; its fruitfulness depends not upon what you can appropriate for your self alone, but upon the good acts you do for your fellows. The joy and richness of living is in self-forgetting service. When Lord Shaftesbury wanted to help the poor of London, he laid aside his fine raiment and became a costermonger. The gracious influence of his life is revealed in the statement of one who said of him: I was standing under the shadow of St. Paul's at midnight a broken-hearted man. I had gone wrong again and again, when the earl put his hand upon my shoulder and said, "Don't be discouraged, Jack, you will be a man yet," and that word nerved me with new hope. No one doubts that the great philanthropist had discovered the secret of a happy life. The Church Knows the Joy of Living. Its members are the happiest people in the world, for they observe the law of unselfish service more than any other class. Jesus Christ had His life writ small by one who said, "He went about doing good." Of course, not all Churchmen are unselfish. One may be quite prominent in the Church and shut himself up like a clam. But this is certain, such a character will never be happy there, for he is out of his element and quite lonesome, and he will sooner or later leave the Church for more suitable company. Apart from all the rewards of a future life, every man should attend Church regularly in order to discover the joy of living here and now.

The Sense of Failure Takes Away the Joy of Life. But many failures would be avoided if we only knew the importance of the trifles from which they spring. "Last year you had a slight cold; I warned you then against neglect; I can do nothing for you now." Or, "I thought it clever to play truant when a school boy, and now I am the drudge for my former schoolmates whom I left at their books." The sea wall of Holland resists the boom and dash of the heavy waves, but yields to the small stream that percolates through its foundation. The Church saves thousands to a happy life by insisting upon the importance of trifles.

God Knows Us better than we know ourselves. The Churchman learns God's better plan for him. He secures safety in the surrender of self assurance. As a rule it is the tried and experienced railroad men who meet death in their vocation. Inexperienced men know they do not know, and are careful to follow the rules of the road. But too often self confidence supplants caution with disastrous results. The Church warns us against taking chances in the realm of morals and conduct. Its highway may be less lurid and its pleasures less bizarre than the way of the indifferent and careless, but it is safe; and that alone is worth a man's consideration. It treats the first symptoms; it examines the foliage, but does not neglect the roots.

Do You Say the Church is Too Exacting? Does it make too many demands? Men do not spare their energies in projects that promise large dividends. And they are honored as broad men of vision. If there is a business that offers as rich returns for capital invested as the business of right living offers, we have never heard of it. Attend your Church and receive a perpetual dividend in the form of a large, responsive, and
